The Sexual Man

The aim of this session is to understand and appreciate the physiological differences in men and women, particularly in the sexual arena, to give an understanding of the struggle men face in a highly sexualised environment and explore ways that both men and women can enhance their sexual discipleship, to provide participants with information about the construction of male sexuality with a view to helping men normalise their experience of their own male sexuality, and to help the women begin to appreciate the issues involved for men successfully managing male sexuality.

The Origin, Power and Purpose of Sex

The aim of this session is to provide women with an opportunity to listen to the theology of sex as men are introduced to the deepest issues of their sexuality, which go beyond biology and psychology to the character of God and His ultimate purpose. It also provides women with an opportunity to see how the purposes of God apply to their own sexuality and need for intimacy.

The Cycle of Addiction

The aim of this session is to understand the cycle of addiction and explain it from a behavioural and bio-chemical point of view, to be alert to issues of shame and guilt and note how this may be a factor in shaping our attitudes to our sexuality, and to understand how sex is intended to be a bonding experience.

The Understanding Man

The aim of this session is to give men and women insight into the differences between male and female sexuality with a view to men increasing their capacity to be understanding husbands and lovers.

Retraining Your Brain

This session teaches the biological, emotional and spiritual processes involved in renewing the mind. It provides an understanding of the intentional work that the men are undertaking in order to be healthier and loving to the women in their world. It assists women to understand that sexual purity is not a male only issue and provides insight into the way our culture is reshaping and defining the sexuality of women. It provides an understanding of how thought processes are established in the brain with a view to learning a workable process for bringing thoughts under control.

Taking a Stand

The aim of this session to assist women to understand the impact of sexually explicit material, to explore issues relating to intimacy, and to learn how to support men in the course as they receive ministry and consecrate themselves. The women, like the men, will be encouraged to take a stand against shame, fantasy, pornography and inappropriate sexual behaviours.

Guarding Your Heart

The aim of this session is to understand the commitment the men are making to "nourish" and "cherish" a wife, to cultivate an attitude of thankfulness for what a partner is, rather than what he is not, to understand that submission is not about domination but of mutual care and love, and to receive healing prayer.

For Women Only

The aim of this session is to provide a brief look at the key issues of female sexuality and suggest resources for accessing more detailed information, to underline the miracle of creation and the spiritual aspects of intimacy, to address sexuality in the bedroom and the art of love making, and to encourage women to understand their own physiology.
